the least degree, to the improvement of the Lead, having availed themselves of every modern improvement for that purpose.

Being well aware, from our long familiarity with the different leads sold in our market, that by far the greater proportion sold as such has been, and still is greatly adulterated with Barytes, an srticle of mineral production much heavier than White Lead, and in fact having nothing that its appeals weight to recommend it, the Trusress of the Atlantic White Lead Company have passed, unanimously, the following resolution, viz:

"Resolved, That in yew of manufacturing may be ground active, the Atlantic White Lead Company will make but one quality of White Lead, both Dry and progned is Oil; that to be a strictly pure, genuine article, and perfectly free from any adulteration whatever, which the company will warrant as such to all who may purchase their Lead.

Barchaseus, therefore, may be well assured that every dependence may be placed in the purity of every pomod of White Lead manufactured and sold by the Company, which pureness will not only tend to the greater durability of the Faint, but will ose found much more economical in its use, even in the most common description of painting, owing to the body or covering quality it possesses, thereby giving a far better funish with two costs, than the adulterated White Faint would with three, of which every painter will hear witees.

The Comp my also manufacture Red Lead and Litharge, and have for sale a viriety of Paints Ground in Oil, viz: Verdigris, Blark Paint, Yellow Ochre, Spanish Brown, Paris Green, Brunawich Green, &c. &c.

Highly Important from Washington

Washington, Feb. 26-2 o'clock, A. M. An extraordinary Cabinet meeting was called last night about So'clock, in a most private manner, which broke up but a short time since. The lateness of the hour, and the secrecy with which the call was made, will prevent me from entering more fully, at this time, into any speculation as to the important business which brought them together in so sudden a manner. I will, however, say it is thought that the British Minister made his ultimatum to-day; and although its nature has not yet been fully developed, enough is known to cause sober thinking people to reflect seriously upon the present state of our foreign relations. Of one thing you may rest assured, which is, that England is not going to rest assured, which is, that England is not going to surrender one foot of territory north of the Colum-biariver, without a struggle. She "will not be bul-lied much longer by the United States." Such is the language of her Minister to private persons here. I have the most indubitable authority for saying this, notwithstanding the peaceable appearance of the late news from England. The Secretary of State has been, late and early, for the last three days, writing despatches to all our Ministers and Consuls abroad, which shows that there is trouble in the camp.

In addition to the foregoing, a Southern Senator had it in contemplation, in secret session, to take the whole of our foreign affairs out of the hands of the committee in charge of them in the Senate, but which was postponed for the present, lest the act might prove injurious to the public interests. In this movement, all the whigs of that body were willing to co-operate, but through the earnest opposition of two or three democratic Senators, the measure was defeated for the present. All this goes ta prove my previous statements of the unfortunate condition in which Mr. Polk is placed, owing, as 1 have said before, to his want of confidence in his legitimate advisers—the Senators of his own party. It will be remembered that about four months ago, I informed you that Mr. Walker and the British Minister were making arrangements for a reduction of the impost duties by their respective governments, at the Treasury Department. Well, the last news brought us the confirmation of this, in the fact that Mr. Walker's report was in England before it was officially submitted to Congress. There would have been nothing very extraordinary in this, had not the friends of the tariff endeavored to throw obloquy upon the Secretary of the Treasury, for having given the British Minister this information in advance of Congress. There certainly was no great harm in this, as both governments seemed desirous of abolishing the restrictive system on imports altogether, except so far as that which might be necessary to defray the expenses of the two governments respectively. The way this report got out, was simply as follows: Mr. Pakenham being in Mr. Walker's office on the day announced by me, saw his report and projet lying on his table Being deeply interested in its contents, he asked the Secretary for a copy of it, which was given him, and which he immediately transmitted to his government. So much, then, for this affair, about which there is so much fuss made.

It is the opinion of the most intelligent here, that should a reduction of the tariff take place, it will not benefit American breadstuffs in the least, as the ports in the Baltic are able to supply England with all she wants, at eleven shillings per quarter less than we could do it for. This is proved by the fact that whilst we pay but four shillings duty upon flour entering Canada for transhipment to England the flour from the Baltic pays fifteen shillings, and is able to meet us in the market at that. ARIBL.

Postscript.—From a gentlemen by the southern oost last night, I learn that a duel was fought at Richmond, Va., between Mr. Robert Pleasants, of the Richmond Whig, and Mr. Wm. Ritchie, of the Enquirer, in which it is said the former was killed. They fired four rounds each, with pistols, and then closed up to each other with bowie knives. Mr. Ritchie received three cuts-one in the mouth, one in the arm and one in the breast. Mr. Plaas ants received a cut across the abdomen, which has caused his death. Mr. Ritchie, I understand, is now in this city.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25, 1846. Appointments, Confirmations, &c. &c.
Romulus M. Saunders, of North Carolina, was confirmed to-day by the Senate, as Minister to Spain, in place of Washington Irving, who has requested to be allowed to return home. An interesting case has been going on in the Su-machine, in which the Mr. Phelps of the Senate, is engaged. He is considered, by both the court and bar, to be a lawyer of superlative talents, and on this occasion has far surpassed all his other forensic

Some days ago I said that the nomination of Isaac Wright, Navy Agent at Boston, was opposed by the Southern Senators, on account of his supposed abolition principles. This was one side of the story. It is only fair, in all such cases, to give the other, which I now do, not being interested one way or another in the matter. His friends say that Mr. Wright has ever been an open and decided opponent of the abolitionists in Massachusetts—was the first editor in Massachusetts to advocate the annexation of Texas, under Mr. Tyler's treaty; and as soon as Mr. Polk was nominated, took the stump for Polk, Dallas, Texas and Oregon, throughout the Bay State. I hear that he was the author of the epirited and graphic account of the famous Anti-Texas Convention at Faccuil Hall, which appeared in the New York Herald last winter. Certainly, no one who read that account, would accuse him of abolition sentiments. In '44 he run as the democratic candidate for Congress, against J. Q. Adams, and got the same vote as Mr. Polk—no abolitionist voting for him.

Doings in Congress—Mr. Dickinson—Almost a De-Some days ago I said that the nomination of Doings in Congress-Mr. Dickinson-Almost a De cision in the Senate, upon the Oregon-The Harbor Bill in the House-An Estoppel, by Mr. Holmes, upon Log-Rolling.

The long and laborious effort of Mr. Dickinson, of York State, is finished—he has brought his argument to a close; and we do solemnly assert, that after a discursive dissertation of nearly four hours, (yesterday and to day,) he has left the question standing precisely where he found it. His summary of the evidence of our charter to Oregon, from Spanish and American explorations and settlements, as compared with those of the English, was but an Spanish and American explorations and settlements, as compared with those of the English, was but an imperfect recapitulation of the testimony on the title, as condensed in the clear and methodical argument of Mr. Dix—his description of Oregon, he acknowledged to be from an old speech of Colonel Benton—while the commercial division of his harangue was in part from the great commercial speech of Mr. Allen, on the Texas annexation, at the last seasion—and in part from the cor mercial speech of the same Senator, on the Oregon, on the 10th of the present month—his onslaught upon Mr. Webster, was borrowed from Mr. C. J. Ingersoll's concluding remarks upon the notice, in the House—while the questions of impressment, the N. E. boundary and the Caroline, as indicating the policy of the British government towards us, were so evidently suggested from the late essay of the Senate's Chairman on Foreign relations, that we wondered Mr. Dickinson did not concede his obligations.

For his own sake, as a son of York; for the sake of our high personal regard for him as a man, we do wish he had said less, and had said it more to the purpose. It was an up-hill business with the honorable Senator from the start, and his strength and courage sensibly diminished as he ascended.—He appeared to grope and feel his way, rather than to walk up to the question, and into its merits, with his eyes open and his understanding wide awake. And yet the fault was more in the manner than in the matter of the honorable Senator. Had Clay delivered the same speech, in the same identical words. Senators, so far from going to sleep over it, as they did, would have listened, and would have been interested, if not edited. It was the bard, metallic voice of the orator, and his labor in getting explored, in the editied, it was the bard, metallic voice of the orator, and his labor in getting expressed, if not edited. It was the bard, metallic voice of the orator, and spriking repartee, a spicy anecdote of illustration—a brillant overflow of patriotism—a racy but none of these saving clauses were introduced—It was a dull journey over the dead level of forensic mediocrity.

The positions of Mr. D. were all well enough; his exposition of the title—his advocacy of the notice—his animadversions of the chicacery of Great Britain in her relations with us—his recommendations of maintaining our rights at all hazards, and of only settling the difficulty by negotiations without in ringement of the national honor—were all strong points for an effective argument, for some originality of thought, and research, and recital, and deduction. But in all these essentials the speech of Mr. Dickinson was as barren as his manner was devoid of life, action, or effect. Mr. D. cannot appeal to the plea of the youthful Helicon—he is old enough to appreciate his own merits; and yet, the necessity of dispelling his ignorance upon this point is the paramount inducement to our present strictures. We do solemnly believe that he has a high estimate—a very high estimate, of his intellectual calibre, and that this destructive idea has prevented him from that industrious research, and study, and application to hettory, to politics, to governmental science, so essential to the perfection of a great statesman.—The great secret, most unappreciated by Mr. Dickinson is, that when one has but little to say, he should say but little, and be done with it.

As soon as Mr. Dickinson had concluded his well meant and charitably received discourse, Mr. Dayton moved the postponement of the question, for two weeks from Monday next. Mr. Allen resisted the motion, because it would argue of fear and qualing. Gen. Cass seconded the Senator from Ohio. Mr. Calhoun wanted the amendment oved upon, and disposed of, and the question put in some questionable shape, before he, at least, should speak to it. Mr. Calhoun wanted the amendment oved upon, and disposed of, and the question put in some questionable shape, before he, at least, should speak to it. Mr. Calhoun desired Mr. Colquit's amendment of the present session.

On m

and gives the President discretionary power to withhold the notice, even after the adjournment of the present session.

On motion of Mr. Allen, the Senate went into executive session, after voting down a motion by Mr. Mangum to adjourn.

In the House, the harbor bill has been under the hammer. Mr. Holmes, to prevent log-rolling, secured the passage of a motion, by which the vote upon every amendment can be analyzed. Mr. Payne, of Ala., denounced the system of internal improvements, as herein proposed to be introduced, most indignantly. Mr. Brinkerhoff followed in defence of lake harbors, as an offset to Southern fortifications. [See House report.] We shall have some interesting passee, at arms length, upon this billyet.

The ringing of the last bell interdicts further commentary for the present.

The Anniversary—Washington's Birth-Day Assem-

The Anniversary-Washington's Birth Day Assem-bly-Some Particulars of that Splendid Affair-Dreadful Fracas at Richmond, Va.-Turning

Point of the Oregon Controversy in the Senate. We had purposed an elaborate and deliberate account of the splendid Washington Anniversary Ball, given at Carusi's Saloon on Monday evening last; but matters more important to the public have deprived us of this great anticipated pleasurable description. We will take occasion to say, how-ever, that it was a most recherché affair—that New York, and the State of New York, were well represented, in ladies and in gentlemen, in numbers, in elegance, beauty and grace, and in talents, dignity and station. The saloon was full of bright eyes. The President, and Mrs. J. K. Walker, were there. Most of the corps diplomatic, in their court costumes, were there—officers of the army and navy in uniform, were there—indges of the Supreme Court, members of the cabinet, members of Congress, editors, reporters, strangers and citizens, were there all told, not less than six hundred people were there during the evening. The President led the way down to the elegant supper—partook of it—laughed and chatted with the ladies, cracked jokes and ate heartily, and enjoyed himself very much. The whole arragements were creditable to the good taste of Mr. Miller—the supper was particularly popular; but we must say that we did get hold of a bottle of champaign which could not or would not explode. As Mr. Miller, however, is always considerate to the "press gang," we wish that he may always be encouraged in his public "swarries" with a mass meeting of the "good and brave and beautiful," like that of the Washington Anniversary Ball. We do wish we had time to go into particulars of this fine ball, and i'raith, with your permission, we will to some extent. And we will give the names of some of the patrons and participants of the festive scene.

The President, plain suit of black, pleasant as a sented, in ladies and in gentlemen, in numbers, in names of some of the patrons and participants of the festive scene.

The President, plain suit of black, pleasant as a sunshiny day; looks as though he slept well of nights, notwithstanding the Oregon question. Senator Ashley, Senator Sevier, and daughter; Senator Upham and lady; Senator Mooreheat and lady; Senator Haywood and daughter—(Senator Haywood is the handsomest man in the Senate, and the daughter will speak for herself—that she will)—Senator Greene—a very ripe old gentleman, by the by; Judge Woodbury—what a fine, staunch, good Judge he is, too, lady and daughter; lady in blue silk; daughter in light figured satin, bracelets and pearls. Mr. Pakenham—a plain looking gentleman, with a genuine Hibernian physiog. The Count Bodisco, with his imperial-moustache. Mons. Pageot, the agreeable French Minister, bearing, with his other decorations, the cross of the Legion of Honor. Mr. Serruys, the Belgian Charge; Com. Kearny, U. S. N.; Lieut. Brownell, do.; Major Walker, U. S. M. C., and his charming daughters; Mrs. Alexander Hamilton, (and long life to the old lady.) Mr. Wentworth, of Illinois, and lady; (Mr. W. was der Hamiton, (and long life to the old lady.) Mr. Wentworth, of Illinois, and lady; (Mr. W. was dressed to the top of the Parisian;) Judge Rowan, M. The argument of this cause was continued by Mr. Latrobe for the appellants, and by Mr. Bibb for the appellace. Adjourned till to-morrow, 11 o'clock. TWENTY-NINTH CONGRESS.

In Senate.

Washington, Wednesday, Feb. 25, 1846.

Prayer by the Rev. Mr. Trastin.

Petitions by Messrs. Speight, Sturgeon, Ashley, Dix, and others.

A number of reports upon private cases, chiefly adverse, and all agreed to.

The joint resolution providing for the exchange of government books with the Franch government, was read a third time and passed. Appropriates $500 to this purpose.

A bill appropriating alternate sections of land to the State of Michigan, along the line of a contemplated railroad, for the purpose of alding in the completion of said railroad, provided that the road shall be free to the transportation of all articles belonging to the government, or for government purposes, that may pass over it, and that if the road be not finished within twenty years, this act to be null and void, and the lands herein granted to revert to the United States. The bill also makes appropriations of land to the Lachina Canal.

The bill was read through by the Socretary.

Mr. Woossaides asked leave to make a brief exposition of the bill. The bill had been three times favorably reported upon by the committees of the Senate—had twice passed the Senate; but for the want of time had been stopped in the House. Mr. W. showed t at the granting of the alternate sections aforesaid, would so far enhance the remaining moiety of the government far above the original value of the whole quantity. Mr. W. continued his exposition of the bill. This was the resolutions before the Senate, with their amendments, for the Association of the Mining more nor less than the resolutions before the Senate, with their amendments, for the Association of the North West Coast between the Pacific and the Rocky Mountains, known as the Original condition, or use, by the high contracting parties, of that perition of the North West Coast between the Pacific and the Rocky Mountains, known as the Original of the point where he left off last atternoon, his ammunition at that time being fairly expended. Mr. D r adverted to the charges which he had bro gersoll in the House, when

M. Evas objected. The Senator is not in order.

Mr. Dickinson said he would not read if Senator's objected.

Mr. Hurristors objected. The Senator was not in order.

Mr. Dickinson being interdicted the reading, proceeded to a verbal statement of the accusation, that the District Attorney of New York, for his defence of McLeod, received from the National Treasury a fee of $5,000. Mr. D., however, took occasion to show that the Datrict Attorney in the premises (I. A. Spencer.) was retained by Mr. McLeod, prior to the appointment of said Spencer to said Attorneyship. Mr. D did not think it imperative upon Mr. Spencer, that after his off-call appointment, he should abandon the case of McLeod. With some further remarks upon this intricate case, Mr. D. recurred to the fact, that in all negotiations with Great Britain, all the concessions had been on our side; and that in this very case of McLeod, the laws of New York had been superseded by the Federal suthorly and that Lord Brougham had boasted of it in the British and the Lord Brougham had boasted of it in the British Parliament, as a case in which the American Constitution had been overruled, out of deference to the demands of Her Majesty's government. Read the letter the New York Attorney General, pred the Medical Science of Instructions from Mr. Webster, Sourcestyin that Medical Science of the American of Lord Brougham on the subject. Resulting at length to the subject of the notice, Mr. D. was not of the opinion that it would arrest negotiations.

Mr. J. M. Clavrov would sak a question of the honorable Senator. He had spoken yesterday of a commercial treaty with England; and that he hoped we should meet England to a beriff the spreaded used to a beriff the subject of the notice, Mr. D. was not of the opinion that it would a result spending the subject of the notice.

Mr. Dickinson, how he hoped "we should meet England in the same spirit with which it approached user the late of the Medical Science of the Medical Science of the Medical national honor. He did not, perhaps, transcend th pectations of many of his friends; but he fully can to ours, and we are proud he did so well. "He did his best—angels could do no more."]

Mr. Davron moved to postpone the whole subject to Monday fortnight. The debate had suspended all other bills. There were sixty bills on the calendar, and stuch business before the Senate, in another capacity. Mr. D. recommended the windom of such suspension of this discussion as he had proposed. Referred to the temperate tone of the news from England, and hoped was should meet her in a similar temper. This was not likely to be senate was not predipped to the senate was not predipped and to the courtesy which should war esta among the individual members. He had no objection, then, to the postponement for one or two day; but be could not concur to the remote postponement proposed. It was not desired as a matter of general policy.
